The Kotel Agreement

“Last night a violent arrest was made. ... The crime? Reciting the Shema aloud in a prayer shawl!”

In what country would you think such an arrest occurred? Iran? Russia?

Unfortunately, it was Israel, October 2012 at the Kotel, in Jerusalem. The perpetrator? Anat Hoffman, one of the leaders of Women of the Wall, a pluralistic group of women who have been gathering in the Women's section of the Kotel for more than three decades to pray Rosh Hodesh services together. This arrest, and one a month later, for the crime of carrying a Sefer Torah into the Kotel Plaza, outraged world Jewry. (Rabbi Fryer Bodzin was arrested a year later with others as Women of the Wall continued to pray in the Women's section and to advocate for their rights.)

The response of our 1.7-million-member Masorti/Conservative Movement, the Reform Movement and others of shared values was swift. Thousands of messages poured into Prime Minister Netanyahu's office demanding an end to Orthodox exclusivity of prayer at the Kotel and the long overdue recognition of Jewish pluralism in Israel. The New York Times ran a front-page story about the arrests as did every major Israeli news outlet. What had been simmering beneath the surface for years boiled over. If Israel was to be the homeland of the Jewish people, it could no longer ignore nor subjugate non-Orthodox Jews, especially not at our holiest site, the Kotel.

I was leading USCJ at the time and was a newer member of the Board of Governors of The Jewish Agency. Many of the leaders of Federation and the Jewish Agency are from Conservative and Reform Communities. We began an advocacy campaign that successfully raised the profile of this issue such that the Prime Minister asked his friend and Chair of The Jewish Agency Executive, Natan Sharansky, to solve the Kotel problem. Sharansky convened the leaders of the Conservative and Reform Movements, Women of the Wall, and the Jewish Federations of North America to negotiate a solution with Avichai Mendelblitt (who was then the Cabinet Secretary and just completed his service as Attorney General) to get to work.

Sharansky's vision was “one Wall for one people”. It was a difficult negotiation that lasted four and a half years. We had to negotiate among ourselves a set of common goals and understandings and negotiate with the Government which had to negotiate with us, the Archeological Society, the Waqf and the Western Wall Heritage Society led by the Rabbi of the Wall and the Haredi parties.

Ultimately, Sharansky's vision prevailed. We concluded the Kotel Agreement that expanded the Kotel and had three main understandings. The first to extend the notion of the Kotel to include the area known as Robinson's Arch, renamed Ezrat Yisrael, and to designate the Northern section for Orthodox prayer and the Southern section for Pluralistic prayer. Prior to that the Kotel was not a designated synagogue. It is a National Site of Israel and the Jewish People. That prayer occurs there under the supervision of the Rabbi of the Wall is custom, not law. Our agreement would give up our legal right to pray there in a pluralistic manner for the official designation of Ezrat Yisrael as a pluralistic synagogue at the Kotel.

The second understanding was that the Kotel plaza would be expanded so that when one entered it, they would clearly have a choice between Orthodox prayer in the Northern section and pluralistic prayer in the Southern section. The entrance and security stations would have to be modified to accommodate this. Related to the plaza was also an understanding that the entire section would have to be built out, maintained, and have signage appropriate to a National Historical Site of the Jewish People.

The third and final understanding was that the groups who used each section would have a role in the governance of the site. The Prime Minister was to establish a new committee for the pluralistic section that would be chaired by the head of The Jewish Agency and include two members each of the Conservative and Reform Movements, and Women of the Wall. Other members would include a representative of the Archeologist Society and four at-large members appointed by the Prime Minister. This understanding was most important because it meant de facto recognition of the pluralistic movements in Israel.

In January 2016, the Israeli Government accepted the Kotel Agreement by a vote of 15:5. It was a historic day. We who had worked so hard for such an agreement celebrated. Our joy, however, quickly turned to anger. In short order the Haredi parties started to threaten the viability of the government coalition over the Kotel Agreement, even though they were aware of it and tacitly approved of it. As a result of their political gamesmanship the Kotel Agreement was tabled a year later.

Since then, tensions have only risen at the Kotel. Women of the Wall, the Conservative and Reform Movements and others continue to gather monthly for Rosh Hodesh services. Efforts are made to smuggle a Torah into the Women's Section for Torah Reading. Most months they are successful.

—Yet, the Haredi parties send busloads of Yeshiva students—men and women—to harass the worshippers. Often, it's very ugly with name calling, yelling, whistle blowing and spitting. Sometimes there is pushing and shoving.

It's a shame really, because the Kotel Agreement is really a good compromise for all. The Orthodox gain a legally recognized synagogue in the Northern section and Women of the Wall and the Movements get “out of their hair and sight.” The pluralistic section is South of the Maghrabi Ramp and several meters below. We gain a beautiful site for our prayer services without harassment and recognition.

Prime Minister Bennett and Prime Minister designate Yair Lapid placed the Kotel Agreement on their official platform and as a part of their written Coalition Agreement. That's why Bennet's recent comments in which he said he will not implement the agreement is so disappointing. (Bennet was Diaspora Minister when we negotiated the agreement and supported it.) When government refuses to keep their agreements how are we to have trust in their promises? It's one thing for campaign promises to be left unfulfilled. It's another for written agreements, that were ratified by Cabinet, to be unfulfilled.

I still have hope that Prime Minister Designate Lapid, who has been the most consistent and outspoken about supporting the Kotel Agreement, will implement it when he becomes Prime Minister. (If he becomes Prime Minister. It is Israel after all.)

But as the Talmud tells us, al tifros al hanes—don't rely on miracles. Until the Kotel Agreement is implemented, and likely even afterwards, we must continue to advocate for it. When you visit Israel, pray at Ezrat Yisrael. Write the Prime Minister and demand that the Kotel Agreement is implemented. Support the Masorti Movement in Israel. These simple actions will continue to put pressure on the Prime Minister to keep his word to world Jewry. And they will ensure that Israel, if it is to be the homeland of the Jewish People, will be the homeland of all the Jewish People, no matter their religious identification and denomination.

As we approach Israel's 74th Yom Ha'atzmaut this is what's on my mind. I hope that next year, when we are in Israel with UJA Federations Mission in honour of its 75th Yom Ha'atzmaut, we will be able to celebrate the implementation of the Kotel Agreement and pray at Ezrat Yisrael with full joy.

Passing the Gavel

This place is in my bones, and it is as much a part of my own Jewish identity as reading from the Torah or celebrating Shabbat.

After three years, hundreds of meetings, countless emails and a worldwide pandemic, it's hard to believe that this is my final Bulletin article as President of Beth Tzedec.

One of the most important resources I've had during these busy years, both personally and professionally, has been the leadership and dedication of Executive Director Randy Spiegel.

Over 11 years, he led transformational changes to our physical space, managed an incredible team of professional and support staff and his fundraising efforts have helped position Beth Tzedec as one of the most financially stable synagogues in North America. When caring for the well-being of our Congregation meant transitioning to a hybrid of in-person and online supports for our members, Randy's leadership helped ensure that we could continue to Care, Connect, Pray, Learn, Celebrate and Give & Get as a united kehillah. We wish him nothing but the best in his future endeavours.

I've also been energized by the efforts, feedback and commitment of our members. While it hasn't always been easy to hear what you told me, and it can be difficult to face criticism, I've been reminded again and again just how deeply our community cares about Beth Tzedec. I'm so fortunate to have gotten to lead a congregation full of people willing to put in the work to ensure that we can continue to inspire and enable our community to live meaningful Jewish lives.

And there is still so much work to do. While we've made incredible progress, even when focused on nourishing our kehillah through an ongoing global crisis, the list of ways we want to improve the spiritual, emotional and overall well-being of our members continues to grow. In her essay "Upstream", Mary Oliver shared a wish that I want to extend to each of you: "May I be the tiniest nail in the house of the universe, tiny but useful."

Beth Tzedec, our house of tzedec—justice, righteousness—calls on each of us to support and sustain the work of those who have come before us and those who will follow after us. I'm excited to see the many ways that our members' care and talents will continue to support our shared home, and I'd encourage each and every one of you to find your own "tiny but useful" way to contribute to this incredible community. I hope it is as rewarding an experience for you as it has been for me.

As I've said many, many times, I love Beth Tzedec. This place is in my bones and it is as much a part of my Jewish identity as reading from the Torah or celebrating Shabbat. I grew up at 1700 Bathurst Street, from attending services with my grandfather to Junior Congregation to my bat mitzvah and my wedding, my family has marked some of our biggest milestones in this beautiful building. The roadmap of my life flows in and out of Beth Tzedec. Serving as President—especially during such a difficult time—has been and will remain one of the greatest honours of my life. Thank you for putting your trust in me.

There are far too many people to thank—Rabbis Wernick, Fryer Bodzin and Frydman-Kohl and Yacov Fruchter for always checking in on my well-being and providing much needed support.

To our entire professional staff and SLT—thank you for all that you have done, most especially since March 2020. You are the glue that holds Beth Tzedec together.

And thank you to all the lay leaders I have been privileged to work with, most especially Sheldon Rotman, Bernie Gropper and Patti Rotman and my COVID-Executive Consiglieres, Gary Elman, Jamie Golombek, Mitch Max, Aaron Wine, Cecile Zaifman and Oscar Zimmerman. Thank you for helping to steer Beth Tzedec so smoothly through some very rough waters, and for keeping me sane while doing it.

I could not have held this position without the abundance of love, support and patience shown by my family, particularly Michael, Emma and Zach.

This has been an enormous undertaking, but so gratifying and fulfilling. Don't worry, I'm not going anywhere—you'll still see me around for Shabbat and haggim. A little less stressed, a little better rested and maybe with the time to finally learn to speak Italian. But Beth Tzedec will always be my second home.

L'Chaim!

I celebrate Judith Kaplan and lift up the decision that her family and community made in March 1922, which has created seismic shifts and change in the Jewish community.

Judith Kaplan

Our Place on the Bimah

Before it was revealed that my destiny was to become a rabbi, I worked with Jewish university students. In that role, I was privileged to be a staff member on the first ever Birthright Israel trip. Video cameras followed us everywhere and it was a memorable Israel experience.

In those early years, the ten-day trip was strictly reserved for young Jewish adults who had never been to Israel. When you accompany a bus full of first timers, you see Israel again for the first time. It really was a privilege.

Our itinerary had us scheduled to climb Masada early Thursday morning, a Torah reading day. We held a minyan on Masada. Many in the group did not know their Hebrew names and quite a few never had a formal bar or bat mitzvah. With that in mind, we offered the opportunity to have a first aliyah to the Torah. We would call it their bar or bat mitzvah—and as there were video cameras everywhere, the moment would live on forever.

At the time, I was 25 or 26 years old—not much older than the group—working on a MSW and Certificate in Jewish Communal Service and was firmly ensconced as a Jewish professional. And, I hadn't had a bat mitzvah! Did I know how to have an aliyah? Of course. Had I ever said the words barkhu et Adonai hamvorakh while holding onto a Torah? Never in my life. In the mid-'80s when I was 12 and 13 years old, most girls were not called to the Torah, did not read Torah or Haftorah and did not lead davening here in Toronto.

I still remember during a staff meeting, in the wee hours of the morning telling colleagues that I also wanted to have my bat mitzvah the next morning, with the participants. Then I started to cry.

The next morning, we climbed Masada and I, along with ten or so others, was called to the Torah, outdoors. That was my bat mitzvah. It was Parashat Bo.

The year 2022 marks the centennial of the first public bat mitzvah ceremony in North America. Judith Kaplan, daughter of Rabbi Mordecai Kaplan, became the first North American girl to have a bat mitzvah ceremony on March 18, 1922 at the Society for the Advancement of Judaism (SAJ). I wonder if that young girl knew that her actions would change Jewish communal life forever!

That moment was pivotal. I would argue it was the catalyst to women's participation in Jewish ritual life. As increasing numbers of girls ascended the bimah, girls and women began to expect access to ritual honours and synagogue leadership. Said differently, had Judith Kaplan not had her bat mitzvah 100 years ago, Debbie Rothstein would not be president, Patti Rotman would not be your chair of the Board and I would not be one of your rabbis.

I celebrate Judith Kaplan and lift up the decision that her family and community made in March 1922, which has created seismic shifts and change in the Jewish community. Nowadays, it is expected that all children will be called to the Torah at the age of mitzvot.

As we are a multi-generational congregation, there are still countless women in our community who have not been called up to the Torah. To these women I say: Imagine the meaning it would have if during this year, when we celebrate the 100th year of the bat mitzvah, you came to shul on a Shabbat morning and had your first aliyah to the Torah?

There is always an opportunity to get closer to mitzvot. If not now, when?

Beth Tzedec claims a long-standing cantorial and choral tradition.

What's in a Name

Cancer, Coronavirus, COVID.

These are euphemistic C-words that are now a part of our lexicon. In a Jewish liturgical context, I will venture to add another one—Choir.

Choirs and Cantors (another c-word, for that matter) have historically been blamed for inhibiting congregational participation. The word “choir” gives an intrinsic notion of formality, of concert performance. With the decline of the golden age of cantors and hazzanut, what musically spoke to the previous generations unfortunately no longer speaks to the younger generation, the future on which synagogues depend for their survival.

In many synagogues, choirs are becoming increasingly rare, often relegated to the High Holy Days. Add to this the new reality of COVID, where group singing in proximity is not possible and the likelihood of large choirs making a comeback diminishes.

Beth Tzedec claims a long-standing cantorial and choral tradition. Having grown up in the Congregation, I was privileged to hear Cantor Paul Kowarsky and the Beth Tzedec Choir under the direction of Gordon Kushner ^{z”l}. I also had the fortune to join the choir and sing under the accomplished guidance and mentorship of Cantors Meir Finkelstein and Simon Spiro.

As Beth Tzedec’s current cantor, I was given the opportunity to reconstitute a new choir for Shabbat services once a month, the Shir Hadash Ensemble, a choir of ten to 12 voices under the direction of Ezra Burke.

Aside from services, the Ensemble presented a successful set of concerts. With the onset of COVID and Ezra’s return to England, things came to a grinding halt and Beth Tzedec took the opportunity to explore a different direction. The aim was to find three or four singers to accompany me for one Shabbat a month to elevate the davening and encourage congregational singing.

Enter Asher Farber, a tenor from the Shir Hadash Ensemble and an accomplished pianist and choir conductor who has since collaborated with me on a variety of musical programs.

Asher formed part of the quartet of singers for the Sanctuary Service during the High Holy Days this year under the direction of Maestro Meir Briskman. He recruited three singers—Ilana Zarankin, Laura Fishman and Josh Goldman—for the new small vocal ensemble experiment. With Asher conducting, they accompanied me for our Shabbat of Remembrance service and at Hanukkah Shabbat.

There were several suggestions what to name this new ensemble.

Musical Participatory Shabbat

with Cantor Sidney Ezer, Asher Farber and the HarmonEzers

Shabbat mornings, March 26, April 30 and May 28

Join us for a musically engaging Shaharit service that welcomes and encourages participation! Led by Cantor Sidney Ezer, Asher Farber and the HarmonEzers, our small vocal ensemble, we will introduce new melodies and revive some older and familiar ones in a way that will be sure to get our toes tapping and our voices singing in harmony.

Unofficially, they were dubbed “The Ezerettes” or “The Asherettes”! Finally, Asher came up with “The HarmonEzers” alluding to the goal of the ensemble.

Asher’s simple and accessible musical arrangements leave open the opportunity for the Congregation to participate. So far, the response has been positive. The surge of the Omicron variant was a temporary setback but by the time you read this article, we will—please God—be on the other side of this wave.

Frankly speaking, I enjoy choral music and I miss having a choir. I do not see “choir” as a “c-word.” I do not believe that choirs inhibit congregational participation. Congregants with Hebrew reading skills, familiarity with the meaning and structure of the prayer service and musical prayer modes should not be intimidated by a choir.

In his Guide of the Perplexed 2:6, Rambam wrote: “And let it be deeply known to you that the essential powers of humankind and of nature and of the soul are called angels (malakhim), which are spoken of in many places. Their purpose is explained in Bereisheet Rabbah, that every day the Holy Blessed One creates a choir/class of angels that say song before Him and then move on.” The essence of our beings is that we are indeed singing angels. This applies to the Congregation as much as it does to any choir. I do not know what the future holds for choral music at Beth Tzedec after COVID and beyond. For this year though, why not join me, Asher, and the Beth Tzedec HarmonEzers for a musically engaging Shaḥarit service in which we will introduce new melodies and revive older familiar ones. (See, we did not call them a “choir,” but what’s in a name?) Upcoming dates are March 26, April 30, and May 28.

“I was asleep but my heart was awake...the voice of my Beloved is knocking, let me in.” —(Shir Hashirim 5:2.)

SONGS OF LOVE FROM SHIR HASHIRIM

A Pre-Shabbat Concert

Friday, April 8 at 5:00 PM

On this Shabbat before Pesah, we warm up our prayer space, our homes and our hearts with this pre-Shabbat concert highlighting the beautiful poetry of Shir Hashirim—Song of Songs. This musical event features Aviva Chernick, Beth Tzedec Artist in Residence, together with Cantor Sidney and an accomplished musical ensemble. Shabbat services to follow.

This event will be presented for both in-person and virtual audiences. Pre-registration is required to attend in-person. To register, click here or visit our www.beth-tzedec.org.

Refugee Awareness Shabbat

Saturday, March 5; Services begin at 9:30 AM

Refugee Awareness Shabbat is a moment for our kehillah to turn outward and dedicate a Shabbat experience to the millions of refugees around the world fleeing persecution and violence. For many of us, it is also an opportunity to reflect on the past refugee experiences within our own families.

Our guest speaker is Adam Hummel, a South African-born immigration lawyer. He will reflect on Parashat Pekudei and how it relates to the experiences of modern-day refugees. Much like the Israelites building the Mishkan in the desert, refugees are in unfamiliar countries trying to build a new home and life, with entire communities coming together to help them establish themselves.

Please consider making a donation to the Beth Tzedec Refugee Fund, our partnership with JIAS in supporting refugee families. Click here or visit our website.

Rise (raise up) As You Are Able

It is through small actions—or sometimes brave ones—that we find ways to rise to the occasion.

As you have undoubtedly noticed, Jewish prayer services include a great deal of choreography. Notably, we often ask you to stand up at various times, and with a hint of empathy, inform you when sitting is acceptable or expected. As a way of being inclusive to those who can't stand or have difficulty doing so, I, like many colleagues, often invite you to “please rise if you are able to”.

In a recent Beth Tzedec Spiritual Leadership Team (SLT) meeting, our Artist in Residence Aviva Chernick suggested an alternative way of making this announcement that she had encountered in other communities. The new language which I hope you are now hearing in services is “please rise as you are able”. Rather than giving those who are unable to stand an “out”, Aviva suggested we think differently about what “rising” looks like.

This slight shift from “if” to “as” really resonated with me. Admittedly, I first heard the suggestion as purely about semantics but I believe this shift is at the core of what the Jewish experience is really all about.

Rabbi Jonathan Sacks ^{z”l} famously taught that Judaism prioritizes making the mundane holy. We add spirituality to everyday living through ritual and intention. It is in small actions that we increase holiness in the world. Hillel the sage, in contrast to the House of Shamai, argued that we increase the number of candles that we light on each night of Hanukkah, and his reason is that we believe in the concept of ma’alin bakodesh—increasing the holiness and the light in the world.

This word for “increasing” in holiness truly means to go up and is derived from the same root as the word aliyah that we use both for someone who moves to Israel as well as one who gets called to the Torah. In these cases, there is a choice to increase spiritual connection and bring holiness to the world actively and deliberately. ing holiness to the world.

It is through small actions—or sometimes brave ones—that we find ways to rise to the occasion. This slight shift in how we invite people to “rise” for particular points in the service demonstrates our belief that there are multiple ways that we can “rise” and that we all ought to be invited to find our way of completing this task as we are best able.

We have brought together some Beth Tzedec folks to create a Volunteer Engagement Leadership team, chaired by Judy Libman, tasked with determining how we can make the shul accessible and meaningful for all members, to find a way to volunteer through the shul, and in so doing, raise up others while also feeling spiritually raised. We look forward to sharing more in the months to come.

I also want to take this opportunity to thank Randy Spiegel for his leadership in his role as Executive Director. He always strives to raise up the people around him and the Jewish people, and I benefited from his kindness and wisdom.

As we approach Pesah, I invite you to consider the freedom that we celebrate and the power that exists in all of us to rise up and raise up. With each cup we raise up in the seder, we acknowledge this possibility as the Psalmist wrote “kos yeshuot esa- I raise up this cup of salvation”.

May we all rise up as we are able to meet the challenges and opportunities of this moment.

A Community Pivots

One of the greatest successes of Rabbinic Judaism was how Jewish life pivoted from a central place of worship—the Temple in Jerusalem—to worship as a smaller-scale activity built around community, family and the individual.

One of our best-known psalms is Psalm 137, which opens with “By The Rivers of Babylon...” Bob Marley tune aside, verse 4 of this psalm asks one of the most critical and provocative questions in all of Tanakh (Bible): “How can we sing a song of the Lord on foreign soil?”

The Israelites, recently exiled to Babylonia after the destruction of the first Temple, are in a state of upheaval and radical change. They are confronted with the existential question of how to worship God now that the Temple is gone and God’s chosen people are not in God’s chosen land.

The answer to the Psalmist’s question was to establish the synagogue as the central Jewish institution, a move that was further entrenched after the destruction of the second Temple and the shift from sacrificial Judaism to rabbinic Judaism. The synagogue and the home became the focal points of Jewish living.

The different names we’ve developed for our community institutions show how important it is and how diverse its use has been: synagogue, from a Greek origin meaning ‘to bring together; Beit Knesset, Beit Tefillah and Beit Midrash, each from Hebrew and meaning respectively ‘the house of gathering’, ‘the house of prayer’ and ‘the house of study’; Temple, from a Latin origin meaning ‘consecrated piece of ground’.

When the COVID-19 pandemic began and we had to shutter public spaces, we suddenly were confronted with a similar question that faced our ancient ancestors in Babylon: “How can we maintain a synagogue community when we cannot safely gather?” The words we use for the synagogue are literally words that connect to assembling.

As we all know, the answers have come through the combination of technology and refocussing Jewish living on home life. Thanks to livestreams, Facetime, Zoom and so many more, we’ve been able to see and hear each other in one-on-one conversations and large group events from the safety—and dare I say comfort—of our homes.

While COVID remains a difficult, isolating experience, it is far less isolating than it would have been even a generation ago. Technology has been the tool by which we’ve essentially continued as normal. Instead of coming together in person, we do so online. It has been incredibly helpful, even lifesaving and emotionally necessary, but it is not a radical transformation of Jewish living.

The reinvigoration of Jewish home life, however, is becoming a transformational place. How many do you know who now bake their own hallah every Shabbat but didn’t before COVID? Or who is engaging more deeply in Jewish holiday celebrations? Or who is reading more Jewish books? Attending more Jewish programming? Bringing more Jewish ritual and meaning into their lives?

The pandemic has shown us that Beth Tzedec—and all synagogues—are not about the physical space. When forced to retreat to our other centre of Jewish living, our homes, we've found that community exists through the phone, through video, through a renewed focus on family and friends, through offering help, through deeper engagement in that which we find most meaningful and with whom we have connections.

One of the greatest successes of Rabbinic Judaism was how Jewish life pivoted from a central place of worship— the Temple in Jerusalem—to worship as a smaller-scale activity built around community, family and the individual. Jewish life no longer needed a physical centre. We created Mishdashei Me'at, small sanctuaries—synagogues, study halls and Jewish activities within our homes. Rituals like the Passover seder, set in our home around a family table, designed to prompt questions from the next generation, are perfect examples of this shift.

Beth Tzedec is not and never has been 1700 Bathurst Street. Beth Tzedec is the act of community that we have all continued to engage in from a distance since March 2020. So long as we continue to remember this and allow for Jewish living and connection to infuse our day-to-day lives, wherever we physically find ourselves, Jewish living will surely continue and strengthen for centuries to come.

A Dedication to Community

“I would rather think of life as a good book. The further you get into it, the more it begins to come together and make sense.”

–Rabbi Harold Kushner

You have heard him speak. Prayed with him. Had occasion to talk at smaḥot (simḥahs) as well as during challenging times. Even heard his humour before a sermon.

He likes to chat and if you listen carefully, every word that is shared has a message that is meaningful in many ways. Put those words and messages together, and it's like reading a book and getting a coherent and distinct understanding.

At birth, he was given the name Byron Cyril Kohl. You know him as Baruch, the Hebrew word which begins almost every Jewish prayer.

Rabbi Baruch Frydman-Kohl, who for more than a quarter of a century was the spiritual leader at Toronto's Beth Tzedec Congregation, has been and continues to be a luminary pioneer in the community-at-large.

Honest, respectful, hard-working, skilled and approachable. These are just a few of the many characteristics that make up a good leader. A person with integrity, who believes in the people he leads.

So, what is leadership? The Talmud is loaded with wisdom on how to be a good leader. Taking responsibility begins with leadership, something that is often emotionally demanding and stressful. Leaders learn from many days of study. In short, leadership also means believing in the people you lead.

That is Rabbi Frydman-Kohl.

Little did he know, growing up in a rough neighborhood just blocks away from baseball's famous Wrigley Field on the north side of Chicago, that one day this American-born, (Israeli resident as often as he can), and Canadian citizen, would one day be the recipient of something very special.

Rabbi Frydman-Kohl credits his mother, who suffered from mental illness, for maintaining Jewish life as an anchor of stability. Growing up, he lived near an Orthodox synagogue, attended a Reform congregation and was involved in Conservative and Zionist youth groups in high school.

“I was heavily influenced by the civil rights movement, the anti-war demonstrations in the United States, Israel's Six-Day War, getting Jewish people out of the Soviet Union, the two Kennedy assassinations (John F. and Bobby) and the words of Dr. Martin Luther King,” he said. “I knew that community work was essential and something had to be done to build a better society.”

He entered Northwestern University with plans of one day becoming a high school social studies teacher in marginalized neighborhoods, and at one time was invited to work with Jewish educational leaders in Chicago. But a developing interest in philosophy and political science, as well as concern for the community, gradually led to the rabbinate. Many days, months and years of community work would follow.

It's not uncommon to see him shrug off recognition for most things.

As for his latest honour, it was something exceptional and appropriate. It was a form of beauty that registered in his soul.

The Order of Canada, the highest civilian honour, is presented to people who exemplify the motto “Desiderantes meliorem patriam”. That's Latin and means “(those) desiring a better country”. It's known to be Canada's way of paying tribute to individuals who have made extraordinary improvements and contributions to the country.

“It’s quite humbling to be part of this group and it’s something that I honestly didn’t anticipate,” said Rabbi Frydman-Kohl. “I was in Jerusalem when I received a note from the Office of the Governor General of Canada.

“As on other occasions, I thought they were asking references for people getting a passport or nominated for a committee. When I was informed of the honour, I remember saying, woah, hold on, were they talking about me getting the Order of Canada?”

Known for his involvement in promoting women as leaders, interfaith, working with the gay community, numerous multicultural events and standing for equality for people with colour, Christians, Muslims and Jews, Rabbi Frydman-Kohl knew he was making an impact on a large part of society that went beyond the walls of the largest Conservative synagogue in Canada.

“The Order of Canada is different, not coming from one group, it’s a statement that my work matters to Canada and makes it a better place,” he said. “That’s quite meaningful to me. This is a privilege.”

Not one who is big on putting awards, of which he has many, on his walls, Rabbi Frydman-Kohl recalled that it took him 20 years to frame his Certificate of Ordination. In case you were wondering, what he does fill his walls with are books and artwork.

After serving Congregation Ohav

Shalom in Albany, N.Y. for 16 years, Rabbi Frydman-Kohl came to Canada in 1993 with his wife Josette and three sons.

Committed to opening up Beth Tzedec to new ritual and program ideas, as well as increased congregational involvement and engagement with the larger community, he was well on the way to making a lifetime contribution to humanity.

Several years later, he would be a member of an exceptional group of individuals. Presented by the Governor General of Canada on behalf of Queen Elizabeth II, the award is more than a white enamelled badge with a snowflake-like design, a maple leaf containing a ribbon with red stripes and a white border. Similar, indeed, to the Canadian flag.

There is a prayer recited on the occasion of good news shared with others:

Praised are You, Eternal our God,
Sovereign of Space/Time;
You are good and do good

בְּרוּךְ אַתָּה ה', אֱלֹהֵינוּ מֶלֶךְ הָעוֹלָם, הַטוֹב וְהַמְּטִיב.

Rabbi Frydman-Kohl said he shares his honour with the Congregation, which has supported his efforts and with other educators and rabbis who work with devotion and diligence for the Congregation and community.

For many of us, memorable, personable and exceptional are words that clearly fit Beth Tzedec’s Rabbi Emeritus. When in need, the telephone call comes from him—whether he’s at his home not far from Beth Tzedec or at his other home in Israel.

Many times unexpected, Rabbi Frydman-Kohl shows up at a community activity, an event, offering support, prayer and attention that is hard to put into words. His pledge to comfort, and that of a foundation for comfort, is guaranteed.

With the Jewish community having grown, paradoxically both more inclusive and exclusionary, there is also an opportunity to continue building a life that still carries the importance of faith. It is very much what Rabbi Frydman-Kohl continues to do.

“Caring for others and humility are key elements to a person in leadership,” he said. “It’s about doing things and not just saying them. I have tried to bring others along in a quiet and persistent way. I hope we have done this and continue to do this at Beth Tzedec, throughout the community and the country.”

There is a reference in the Book of Proverbs that says to answer before listening is folly and shame. Too many leaders are quick to jump into action, but slow to listen. Great leaders, like Rabbi Frydman-Kohl, know they have to listen and to listen more than they talk or act.

Mondays, March 14 & 28, April 18, May 2, 16 & 30 and June 13 at 7:45 PM

The loss of a loved one, at any time, is challenging. Judaism has a clear set of mourning rituals that help us relearn to be in the world after our significant loss. For many of us these rituals have been altered or limited, just as the rest of life has been full of uncertainties. Loss during the time of COVID-19 brings a host of other issues that may complicate our grief and bereavement.

What has not changed is our desire to support you at this time, and our belief in the power of coming together. We are here to provide an opportunity for you to meet, support and share—together.

Shul of Rock: Megillat Esther

Thursday, March 17 at 7:30 PM

This year's Purim event brings together legendary songs, legendary artists and legendary performances as the soundtrack to Megillat Esther.

Conceived as a virtual live concert using the artists' original performances, you'll give in to the urge to sing and dance along, and gain a deeper understanding of the characters and events through party songs, drinking songs, break-up songs, relationship songs, fighting-back songs and celebratory songs from a 70-year catalogue of rock, pop, ballads, anthems, country & western and more, presented by the same international ensemble that gave us Motown Megillat Esther and Megillat Ruth: The Musical.

Dress in the spirit of the event, whether it's Shushan Royal business casual from 400 BCE or dressed for your favourite concert or theatre venue from the 1950s onward (that also makes a really good virtual background). And save a little time for a special Purim seudah together!

Passover Guide

Why This Passover is Different from Last Year

As we return to gathering, we return to seder. We wish everyone a safe and joyous Passover.

Preparing Our Homes for Passover

This year, as we transition back to 'normal' routines and practices, we can again plan to prepare and celebrate Passover with family, friends and neighbours.

While we are less in a state of sha'atk'khak, time of crisis, we must still take care to follow the guidance of our local public health authorities. For guidance on kashering your home or hosting or attending sedarim with others, please contact Sheri Federman at 416-781-3514 ext. 227 to request an appointment with a member of our Spiritual Leadership.

Seder

Individuals living alone or those absolutely unable to prepare for Passover are encouraged to contact us directly and we will do our best to help you acquire what you need to enjoy a Passover seder.

Kosher for Passover

We should strive to clean our homes for Passover as we normally would. In the coming weeks, we will make available the Rabbinical Assembly's "Passover Guide" for 2022/5782. In the meantime, you can review last year's recommendations here>>.

Vegetarians and vegans are permitted, l'hathilah, from the outset, to eat kitniyot (legumes).

Yizkor

As is our tradition, we will mark Yizkor in person and with a livestreamed service on the last day of Pesah. Please note that this service will begin at 9:30 AM, via our new Beth Tzedec TV livestream hub. We will record Yizkor and make it available on Beth Tzedec TV and social media channels following the service.

The Sale of Ḥametz

Forms to sell your ḥametz to our Rabbis who will sell it on your behalf may be accessed here or found on the Beth Tzedec website. Alternately, you can contact our Synagogue office at 416-781-3511 or info@beth-tzedec.org to make arrangements to sell your ḥametz.

Contributions to Rabbi Wernick's Discretionary Fund in honour of this mitzvah are especially appreciated at this time, as there are many people continue to face food insecurity that require tzedakah and these contributions will be earmarked to purchase food vouchers.

The Fast of the Firstborn

Following morning minyan on Friday, April 15 at 7:30 AM, we will provide a siyyum (completion of a cycle of study) in person and on Zoom. Join us for coffee and a bagel in the comfort of your own home or with our Spiritual Leadership and kehillah at Beth Tzedec as we celebrate this learning together.

Bidikat and Biur Ḥametz

The search for ḥametz takes place as usual Thursday, April 14, using the formula found in your Hagaddah. If you do not have a Hagaddah, see one of the resources we have made available on our website.

Traditionally, we use a candle, a wooden spoon and a feather to find even the smallest amount of ḥametz. If you don't have these tools handy, you can use any utensil or product in your home that accomplishes the same symbolism.

We will provide an opportunity for people to burn their ḥametz at Beth Tzedec in our parking lot from 10:00 to 10:30 AM. If you have any questions, please contact Lorne Hanick at 416-781-3514 ext. 240.

We encourage our kehillah to do so at home using their barbecue, a metal trashcan or in another safe manner. If that is not possible, then one may crumble the hametz and throw it into a flowing body of water or into a natural area where animals are likely to consume it, as in tashlikh, the casting away of our sins on Rosh Hashanah

Other Resources

We will be posting a variety of Passover resources, downloadable Hagaddot, supplemental readings and the like for all ages on our website. Check back regularly to see what's been added.

We pray that each of us celebrates a meaningful, safe and healthy Passover and that God will bless all humanity with health, happiness and shlaymoot.

Selling Your Hametz

There are four ways we fulfil the Biblical mitzvah of ridding ourselves of hametz before Pesah: we clean our homes; we burn any remaining crumbs; we verbally declare that any hametz in our possession is worthless and no longer owned by us; and to ensure that there is no question about our intent to remove hametz from our possession, we sell our hametz to non-Jews who may own leavened products on Passover.

If you are unable to personally sell your hametz, please complete this form no later than 6:00 PM on Thursday, April 14.

You are welcome to join us in the parking lot on Friday, April 15 from 10:00 to 10:30 AM to burn hametz. For information, contact Lorne Hanick.

In 2021, there were approximately 84 million forcibly displaced people worldwide. Of those, 48 million were internally displaced people and 26.6 million were refugees.

An Update from the Refugee Sponsorship Group

The Beth Tzedec Refugee Sponsorship Group invites you to support our Refugee Sponsorship initiative through Canada's unique refugee resettlement program called the Private Sponsorship of Refugees (PSR) program.

In 1979, the Canadian government created the Private Refugee Sponsorship Programme. Ordinary Canadians could form a group with others; family, neighbours, members of a religious organization, for example, to raise money to bring a refugee family or individual to Canada. The government laid out the rules—the sponsor group had to be approved, had to raise a designated amount of money and agree to be responsible for the resettlement of the refugees for a full calendar year from the day of arrival.

In many cases, the sponsor group had connected with an anchorperson, someone who had come to Canada as a refugee and was now looking for help to bring the family here. The programme was and is a tremendous success. Over the years, Canadians have stepped up: we have supported the Vietnamese refugees, Syrians, the Rohingya, Yazidis, Eritreans and now, Afghans.

So what is the definition of a refugee? A refugee is someone who has been forced to flee their country because of war, persecution or violence. A refugee has a well-founded fear of persecution for race, religion, nationality, political opinion or membership in a particular social group.

Refugees are only eligible for sponsorship if they are no longer in their home country. This often means dangerous travel to another country, sometimes by paying smugglers. It may mean leaving partners and children behind while one family member, usually the dad, goes ahead to try and find a place to live and a way to earn money. Sometimes it means families being separated for years in different countries.

In 2021, there were approximately 84 million forcibly displaced people worldwide. Of those, 48 million were internally displaced people and 26.6 million were refugees. An estimated 35 million forcibly displaced persons were under 18, and in the last couple of years, about one million kids have been born as refugees.

The members of Beth Tzedec stepped up to sponsor a Syrian family in 2016. That family, the Alhamwis, became Canadian citizens on January 20, 2022. The kids are in school and both parents are working. We are no longer their sponsors; we are now their friends, even family.

Our current family, an Eritrean family of six, fled from their homeland to Ethiopia. There have been many recent news articles about the situation in Ethiopia and the plight of the people in the Tigray Region of northern Ethiopia and Eritrea.

After spending years in a refugee camp in the Tigray Region, the family made a perilous journey to Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia. Each day, they live in fear of being arrested by Ethiopian authorities or kidnapped by Eritrean soldiers and sent back to Eritrea, where they face prison or, even worse, death. The mother and daughter are afraid to go out alone.

A teenage son of their friends was assaulted on the street after being overheard speaking Tigrinya, a Semitic language commonly spoken in Eritrea and Ethiopia's Tigray Region. However, they continue to teach themselves English and prepare as best they can for their new life in Canada— although nothing will prepare them for a Toronto winter!

The Refugee Sponsorship Group has been working hard, collecting furniture donated by generous Beth Tzedec members and community members. We have also been consulting with an incredibly responsive staffer at an MP's constituency office who has been helping us move our sponsorship application along. We hope our family will receive permission to travel during this calendar year.

How can you help?

- Please consider joining the Beth Tzedec refugee sponsorship group. If you are looking for an incredibly fulfilling volunteer opportunity, look no further. Check out our group members talking about their experiences on our information page.
- Once we know when the family will arrive, we will reach out for household items, linens, kitchen stuff—everything needed to furnish a home.
- Please consider a donation to the refugee sponsorship fund.

- Attend the programs organized by the clergy, staff, and laypeople at Beth Tzedec to learn more about Ethiopia and Eritrea's stories, history, and politics.

Organizations like HIAS, the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society in the U.S., and JIAS, Jewish Immigrant Aid Services (which manages our sponsorship committee's relationship with the Government of Canada), were founded to help Jews. We continue to do this work because we are Jews.

Beth Tzedec Congregation

Lyon Wexler: He Does It All

If you happened to be at Beth Tzedec on a day when no clergy were present, (highly unusual), you need not worry as Lyon Wexler can and will lead the service.

I have always said there are three certainties in life—death, taxes and change. When I joined Beth Tzedec in 2013, I added a fourth: Lyon Wexler davening. His voice and presence are hard to miss and that fact is all the more remarkable given that he is now 87. You would be hard-pressed to believe that if you heard him lead services. He has a distinct style.

Wexler's abilities with the prayer book did not come accidentally. Born and raised in Montreal, Yehuda Leib (his Hebrew name) had the benefit of having a caring grandfather who would take him to synagogue when Lyon was just a toddler. Even then, Wexler felt an attachment to shul. As he puts it, he was attracted to cantorial music. Later, a synagogue was built right across the street from his home where he spent much time.

Wexler was schooled at Herzylia Hebrew High School followed by time at Yeshiva University's High School programme. He was raised in a kosher home and with that background, it was natural for him to prioritize synagogue life where he was often asked to lead services.

Wexler attended Camp Massad, the first Hebrew-speaking camp in Canada, and even had his bar mitzvah there. The Wexler family relocated to Ottawa where Lyon often led services at the Agudath Israel Synagogue until the arrival of a full-time cantor. (Coincidentally, Rabbi J.

Benjamin Friedberg later became Rabbi of Agudath Israel.)

A graduate of Carleton College (now Carleton University), Wexler enrolled at Osgoode Hall Law School in Toronto. Following graduation, he practiced law for many years and was appointed a Q.C. in 1980.

His law career and family connections soon led him to other pursuits. His then father-in-law was involved in the world of horse breeding and racing, pursuits in which Wexler became interested and enjoyed immensely. One of his horses was entered and raced in the Queen's Plate but unfortunately did not fare too well. However, members of the family present were introduced to the Queen Mother in the paddock before the race which could be considered a "perk" of having a horse running in Canada's oldest and most prestigious race.

Over the years, Wexler's various relationships led him to the business world where he was immersed for many years. That route should not be so surprising given his ease in meeting and talking with people. You notice his smile and humour right away.

Today, Wexler hangs his hat at The Metrontario Group where he has been since 2004. Metrontario is a large business development with ventures in real estate, environmental development, nuclear medicine, marine agriculture and tourism. The company's head office is in Toronto with satellite offices in Israel. The breadth of what Metrontario offers reminds me of Wexler and the full range of what he provides at each and every service he leads. He can do it all.

If you happened to be at Beth Tzedec on a day when no clergy were present, (highly unusual), you need not worry as Lyon Wexler can and will lead the service. By the way, he does it all in a siddur the size of your hand with a print size readable only by 10-year-old eyes! It matters little to Wexler who does it by heart. I suppose the only aspect of the service I have yet to hear from him is a sermon, but likely he has done that over the years. Truth be told, Wexler enjoys being an integral part of the service.

Wexler traces his connection to Beth Tzedec to 2001 when he became a member of the Congregation. He is appreciative of his association with the synagogue over the past 20 years and has been on various committees in the shul—Ritual, Cantorial Search and the 50th Anniversary committees.

Many people recall Wexler for his many appearances on stage at the many Purim shpiels the synagogue staged, particularly his roles as both Mordechai and Haman. He was very clear in his gratitude to the people he has been in contact with, including all the rabbis, cantors and staff that have served during his time as a member. What stood out for me about Lyon Wexler when I chatted with him was just how thankful he is for the people he has known at Beth Tzedec and Metrontario.

In closing, in Lyon Wexler, you have a man who gets full value from his membership at Beth Tzedec and yet, at the same time, he is a man who understands the value of the people he meets and greets each day. With that and his four sons, seven grandchildren (with two more coming this year) Wexler has been blessed. He knows it and appreciates it all.

Maayan Belding-Zidon, Our Tanenbaum Fellow

Introducing Maayan Belding-Zidon, the Anne & Max Tanenbaum Fellow for 5782.

This year marks the 18th anniversary of the Tanenbaum Fellow program. The Fellows receive a significant financial award and the opportunity for a two-week internship at Beth Tzedec, followed by a two-week experience at Camp Ramah Canada. Fellows alternate between rabbinical students with a Canadian connection who study at the Jewish Theological Seminary and Israeli students from the Beit Midrash of the Schechter Institute. While at Beth Tzedec, the Fellow shadows our rabbis, experiencing daily activities in synagogue and community, participating in lifecycle events, learning about the life of a large congregation, and teaching Torah in various settings.

Maayan is a rabbinical student with the Masorti-Conservative Movement at the Schechter Institutes in Jerusalem. A native of Hyde Park, New York, she graduated from Yale with a degree in Modern Middle East Studies in 2013 and worked with youth at risk in Boston before moving to Israel in 2016. Welcoming Karen and Yuri to Team BT

Karen Goldstein

We are pleased to officially welcome the newest member to our professional team, Karen Goldstein, in the role of Senior Executive Assistant.

Karen brings many years of working in the Jewish community to Beth Tzedec Congregation. Karen worked at Prosserman Jewish Community Centre for 11 years as their Executive Assistant. Prior to that, she worked for the Canadian Council for Reform Judaism for 18 years as the Administrative Assistant to the Executive Director. And over the past eight months, she has filled a temporary position here as Executive Assistant, working with our professional staff and lay leadership.

Karen will be assisting Rabbi Robyn Fryer Bodzin, planning milestone celebrations and events at Beth Tzedec Congregation. She is very excited to be a part of a great team.

Karen has three wonderful children and three special grandchildren.

Yuri Vitovsky-Remi

Originally known for heading the Aquatics programs of the Prosserman and Schwartz Reisman JCC's, Yuri leveraged his passion for photography, as well as audio, video, computer, and network engineering to reinvent himself over the course of the pandemic as a broadcast professional.

Yuri is most typically seen streaming Beth Tzedec's services and programs, building AV infrastructure, editing videos, taking photos and flying his drone.

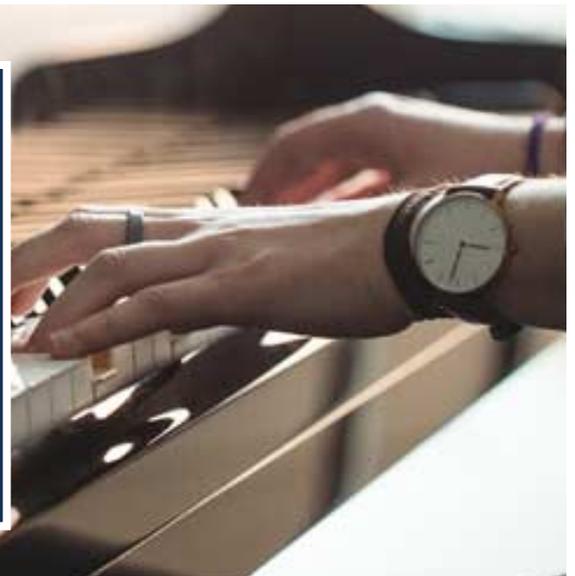

Yuri has been described by his Beth Tzedec peers as "the one who has the most fun."

Hesed from a Distance

Out of the Cold Program

Our Out of the Cold program operated out of St. Luke's United Church again this winter due to the pandemic. Once again, Rafi Aaron, my co-chair from Beth Sholom, and Reverend James Keenan from St. Luke's United Church ran our program for the homeless during the winter months.

We completed the 20-week program of offering a hot dinner at St. Luke's and served roughly 550 meals on Sunday and Wednesday evenings. This under-taking was quite challenging, given the strictest health and safety protocols as determined by Toronto Public Health that had to be followed. We thank Reverend James Keenan from for his unwavering compassion toward the homeless population and for providing us with the opportunity to work together in solidarity with other faith-based groups.

This year, we added a new component to our program. Street Outreach engaged with the homeless on the streets. It was especially impactful for those with disabilities unable to come to the Church to collect meals.

The number of homeless continues to grow exponentially in Toronto. As a result, the outreach will continue to operate year-round, though not as part of the Out of the Cold Program.

A particular debt of gratitude is owed to Rafi Aaron from Beth Sholom. He worked tirelessly both behind the scenes and in-person every Wednesday and Sunday night at St. Luke's United Church. He ensured that every safety protocol was respected and that every guest, harm reduction worker and volunteer felt safe and protected. Rafi never let an unused meal go to waste; he made sure that left-over meals were delivered to those living in the encampments. His dedication and empathy toward the plight of the homeless in our community know no bounds.

We want to also thank all volunteers who assisted, despite the constraints and dangers inherent in the pandemic. Donations of food offered by Provincial Fruit and Commercial Bakeries were appreciated. Beth Tzedec's Men's Club has been a steadfast supporter of our program and once again has provided a very generous monetary donation. Don Smith, one of our veteran volunteers, did an outstanding job leading the volunteers at our meal program. A huge thank you is owed to Terri Humphries, who always works tirelessly to promote Out of the Cold.

Our Hesed Tribute Cards

If anyone would like to support the Out of the Cold program, please consider purchasing a Tribute Card in honour or memory of someone special, with the proceeds earmarked for OOTC.

Memorial Plaques

A plaque to honour the following individual will be installed in the Sanctuary:

Robert Bendavid	Clare Sheldon
Helen Sarah Glazer	Irving Sheldon
Frances Goodman	Victor Shiff
Frances Roslyn Phillips	Bernard Emanuel Staiman
Murray Phillips	Fern Sugarman
Bette Risen	Philip White

If you wish to honour the memory of a dear one, a fitting, traditional and dignified remembrance is through a memorial plaque and lamp. Each plaque, bearing the name and yahrtzeit date, is mounted on a bronze tablet in the Sanctuary. The lamp is lit on the Shabbat of the week of the yahrtzeit, on the day of the yahrtzeit, and on the four festivals during the year when Yizkor is recited. To order a memorial plaque, click here or contact our Ritual Director Lorne Hanick at 416-781-3514, ext. 240.

Everything we do Today is for Tomorrow

Beth Tzedec has a number of opportunities for members wishing to support our tzedakah initiatives. Honour the memory of a loved one by making a contribution to one of our funds or inscribing a siddur on a yahrtzeit. For a complete list of Synagogue funds, call 416-781-3511.

AN EVENING OF HEALING AND RENEWAL

Sunday, June 2 at 7:00 PM

It is the time for song. We have travelled quite a journey through this time of pandemic. On the days leading up to Shavuot, together with an All Star collection of musical guests, join us as we acknowledge the healing that is necessary and celebrate the renewal that is possible.

Artist-in-residence, Aviva Chernick, hosts this special evening of song together with our very own Hazzan Sidney Ezer and a host of special guests including, Israeli superstar Achinoam Nini and her musical partner Gil Dor!
